Hi Angela,

I did get a briefing from my colleagues yesterday, and it's clear the conversation last Friday didn't go well. We heard your comments, and in the next draft we send we will attempt to address them. I anticipate that this will include using some more of the language or the structure that you proposed for Paragraph 44. We will be prepared for a drafting meeting on Friday.

As expected, most of the controversy surrounds Paragraphs 44 and 104, so of course we will focus on these. However, it will also be important to hear your reactions to other changes made in response to your earlier comments.

Hi Walter,

I'm sure your team agrees that our call last week on the consent order terms didn't go very well. I saw a message last night from Brian Carr that he would send another draft by COB Wednesday for use at the meeting on Friday morning. I think the last draft would be very difficult to work off of for the next round. I was going to suggest that we modify the language in the draft before that one for use at the next meeting. I will not give direction to do that unless you agree that is a good approach. Regardless of which draft we are working from, I think we need to be prepared to have a drafting meeting on Friday morning.

Please let me know if you have time to discuss to make sure we get back on track. I am happy to make the time early or late.

Angela
